

October 2008 Update

Emmanuel, Shettima and Kent ministered at a missionaries' seminar in Wukari in Nigeria's north, before heading for the large northern city of Yola. There have been a lot of killings in both these places in recent times, due to the gospel. We went to meet with a group of Nigerian missionaries who minister in un-reached areas, where people are naked hunters. Pastors from churches in Wukari were also invited to the meetings.

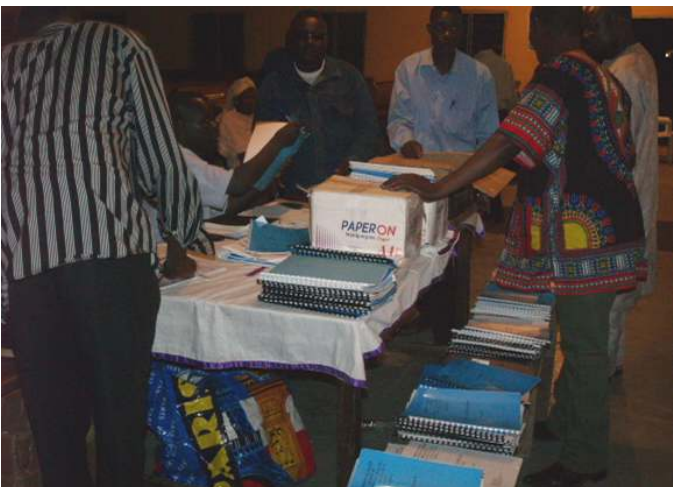

Emmanuel Razack, the leader of the college in Jos, ministering at the seminar in Wukari

We visited the king of Wukari. We spoke about peace and the expansion of the gospel in the region. We prayed with him and took photos. We ended up being informal and close.

Kent speaking at a church in Yola. This meeting was put on prime time television to reach the whole city of Yola.

Getting ready to distribute teaching notes to missionaries and pastors at Wukari and Yola

Kent sharing in the Anglican Church at Wukari

Children on the road as we travelled to Yola

A typical village on the way from Wukari to Yola

A typical scene, as children leave school in the afternoon

We arrived back in Jos after a 10 hour drive from Yola, through beautiful country. The students at Jos are very keen and are studying very hard. It is great to be back with them and all the staff. We have had two babies born to staff the last month. They are all doing well.

We wish to do pastors seminars all over the nation. We are reaching all denominations, including main Pentecostal leaders.

Thank you for your prayer and support as we continue teaching these great future pastors until this semester ends just before Christmas. Yours in Jesus Christ, Kent and Ruth